A D'PAUW GIRL IS FATALY INJURED

MISS MARGARET TRIBOLETT, OF BLUFFTON, WILL DIE AS RESULT OF TROLLEY ACCIDENT IN WHICH HER FATHER WAS KILLED.

FORTY DEAD AND 8 INJURED

Traction Disaster, Worst in the History of Indiana, Near the Village of Kingsland, Wednesday Afternoon—Few Passengers Escaped.

Miss Margaret Tribolett, of Bluffton, a DePauw graduate who has many friends here, was perhaps fatally injured and her father, J. W. Tribolett was killed by a traction line wreck on the Fort Wayne and Wabash Valley line near Fort Wayne Wednesday afternoon. Forty were killed and eight dangerously injured in the wreck.

Miss Tribolett is suffering a compound concussion of the brain and it is believed that she cannot live. She is in a hospital at Fort Wayne. Miss Tribolett is a member of the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority and was graduated from DePauw several years ago. Two weeks ago Miss Tribolett's mother died and about a year ago her brother, also a DePauw man, committed suicide. Should Miss Tribolett's injuries prove fatal, her sister, Miss Charlotte, will be the only surviving member of the family, which a year ago number five.

The story of the wreck as told by a special from Fort Wayne follows:

Forty persons, nearly all men, and the majority of them residents of Bluffton, Ind., are dead and eight are injured with the possibility of a fatal termination to their injuries for two as the result of the Fort Wayne & Wabash Valley Traction wreck at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon, between a north bound local car from Bluffton, filled with excursionists to the Ft. Wayne County Fair, and a special which had been dispatched to Bluffton to run back to this city with passengers.

The disaster, rated as the worst in all interurban history, occurred at a sharp wooded curve, one-fourth of a mile north of the little village of Kingsland, situated six miles from Bluffton, and fourteen miles from Ft. Wayne. That the catastrophe was due to disregard of orders by one of the motormen, is declared to be true. The line is operated on the block system, and the cars are worked under dispatcher's orders. Whether any one failed in his duty can only be determined after full investigation is made and the officials of the company make public the train orders issued for the two crews.

Frank I. Hardy, superintendent of transportation, says that B. T. Corkwell, a motorman of the south-bound train, is probably responsible for the wreck. While no copies of the train orders are obtainable, the supposition is that Mr. Corkwell was to wait at Greensboro, a little station between Ossian and Kingsland, for the northbound train. It is thought that, instead of doing this, he disregarded the block and tried to make up time so that he could meet the north-bound car at Kingsland.

SWITZER GOES TO HOSPITAL

LAFAYETTE MAN CHOSEN TO TAKE THE PLACE VACATED BY DEATH OF DELOSS M. WOOD.

BOTH MEN KNOWN HERE

Many Greencastle people are deeply interested in the change made Tuesday at the Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis when Dr. Switzer, of Lafayette, was made head of that institution to take the place vacated by DeLoss M. Wood. Both men are well known here where Dr. Wood was a resident for many years, while Dr. Switzer has been a frequent visitor because of his relation to DePauw University. Of the appointment of Dr. Switzer the Indianapolis Star says:

At Indianapolis yesterday at a meeting of the executive committee of the Methodist Hospital Dr. G. W. Switzer, of Lafayette, was unanimously elected secretary of the hospital and will have take the management of its financial affairs. His office as secretary makes Dr. Switzer a member of the executive committee. Hon. Chas. W. Fairbanks president of the board of trustees of the hospital, was chairman of the meeting. Dr. Switzer will devote all his time to the interests of the hospital, but will continue his residence in Lafayette for the present. He will go to Evansville Friday to present the needs of the hospital to the annual session of the Indiana M. E. conference.

The position of secretary was held by Dr. DeLoss M. Wood, who died at Battle Ground August 8. Last May, after Dr. Wood became ill, Dr. Switzer was appointed by the board as assistant and served in that capacity until Dr. Wood's demise, when he became the acting secretary of the hospital.

There is a new counterfeit ten dollar national bank note at large, but it is not likely to deceive an ordinarily careful handler of money. The treasury department issued a note of warning Friday. It is a poorly executed photo-etched production, with a few pieces of silk thread in it. It is drawn on the Home National Bank of Staunton, Texas, series of 1902-1908, check-letter D.

COMMITTEE GIVEN POWER TO ACT

MEETING OF COMMERCIAL CLUB LAST NIGHT TO DISCUSS THE KITCHEN CABINET CONTROVERSY.

MAY DECIDE UPON INJUNCTION

At a meeting of the Commercial Club held last night in the office of Dr. G. W. Bence, a committee consisting Ed. Harris, F. M. Lyon Dr. G. W. Bence and S. A. Hays was appointed to investigate the Kitchen Cabinet Factory situation, and was instructed to prevent the factory from moving to Martinsville provided it could find sufficient grounds to do so.

The committee was given full power to act and if it finds that it can prevent the factory from moving it will do so. It is intimated that an injunction to prevent the factory from moving will be secured, if possible.

The Commercial Club members allege that the management of the factory has not complied with its contract with the club. The factory management, however, says the contract has been complied with and has contracted to move the factory to Martinsville the first of the year.

REV. SONNE TO GO EAST.

Sunday, Rev. Augustus W. Sonne, who for nearly four years has been pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, asked his session to call a congregation meeting for next Sunday following the forenoon public service. The purpose of the meeting is to ask the congregation to join him in a request to the Indiana Presbytery asking a dissolution of the pastoral relation.

Rev. Sonne a few days ago went East and preached in New Jersey and since has received a call to the pastorate and has accepted. It is understood that he goes to a very strong church in Trenton, the capital of the state. Another agreeable feature is that it is not far from Princeton University where he graduated in theology and at which city is the former home of Mrs. Sonne and her mother, Mrs. Allen.

The congregation deeply regrets losing Rev. Sonne who is one of the ablest preachers in the city and who has done a great work especially in establishing the Presbyterian Brotherhood. —Vincennes Sun.

Rev. Mr. Sonne formerly was pastor of the Presbyterian church in Greencastle and is widely known in this vicinity.

FAST MONON TRAIN HITS A WORK TRAIN.

Flagman Said to Be Responsible For Monon Wreck Near Stinesville.

Running at the rate of 45 miles an hour, Monon fast freight number 71, crashed into a work train one and one-half miles north of Stinesville at 7:30 Wednesday morning. The accident, it is said, was due to the flagman on the work train not being for enough away to give the signal to No. 71 in time to stop that train.

Engineer Hillen was at the throttle of 71.

The crash came in what is known as the Kelley cut, and fortunately no one was injured. The engineer and fireman on the fast freight jumped just before the collision and saved themselves from a horrible death. The engine on No. 71 was telescoped by two cars on the work train. The cars were reduced splinters and the engine was also demolished. The work train was out on the main line laying new steel rails between Bloomington and Gosport.

The wrecking train was sent from this city to clear the track and had the work completed by 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The crews of both trains will be on the green carpet at Lafayette Thursday.—The Bloomington World.

WILL ASK FOR A NEW FRANCHISE

MANAGER CHARLES V. NEWMAN OF THE GREENCASLE GAS CO. IS CIRCULATING A PETITION THIS WEEK.

WILL PRESENT IT TO COUNCIL

At the meeting of the City Council on next Tuesday night, Charles Newman, manager of the Greencastle Gas Company will present a petition to the council, signed by hundreds of Greencastle people, asking that the Gas Company be granted a new franchise. The franchise under which the company is now doing business will soon expire and Mr. Newman is asking the city to grant a new one.

The franchise under which the local gas company has been highly commended by Greencastle people. When he came to this city and took charge of the gas plant it had been allowed to run down, and, because of bad services, the business had decreased until very little gas was being used. Mr. Newman in the few years he has been here, has built up the business of the company and is giving the people very satisfactory service.

The only contention the people have is that the rate charged here is a little high, but Mr. Newman states that until the consumption of gas in Greencastle is increased it will be impossible to lower the rates. He promises that as soon as the consumption of gas reaches an annual consumption of 8 million cubic ft. the rate will be lowered. If the rate of consumption continues to increase in the next few years as it has in the past few years, the time of a lowering of gas rates will not be long off, for, the company is now selling 5 times the amount of gas it did when Mr. Newman took charge.

DR. K. W. ROBBINS IS CALLED AGAIN

QUARTERLY CONFERENCE OF COLLEGE AVENUE CHURCH ASK BISHOP AND CABINET TO RE-APPOINT PRESENT PASTOR.

RESOLUTIONS ARE ADOPTED

At a meeting, Wednesday night, of the College Avenue Methodist Church Quarterly Conference, it was voted to ask the Bishop and his cabinet to re-appoint the Rev. Kirk Waldo Robbins to his present charge.

Dr. Robbins has now been here one year and has proven himself to be a man of exceptional ability as pastor. The following resolutions presented by Prof. Ayres were adopted at the meeting last night.

Resolved: That we the members of the Quarterly Conference of College Avenue Church hereby express our high appreciation of the faithful and efficient work of our pastor, Kirk Waldo Robbins during the past year.

During this time he has steadily grown in our confidence and esteem both as a preacher and a kind sympathetic pastor ever ready to search out those in need of help, and to give words of consolation and cheer to the sorrowing.

In all of his labors he has been ever ready to spend and be spent. As an expositor of the word he is clear, up-to-date, bringing forth things both new and old.

His advanced stand in his expostions, in harmony with the very best Christian scholarship of our times, appeals to thinking men and women and is both safe and sane.

He is bold to declare the truth as he sees it while standing solidly on the cardinal declaration: "Jesus Christ the Saviour of the World."

Having thus gained a warm place in our hearts and having proven his real worth we request that our District Superintendent be requested to present this request to the presiding bishop and cabinet.

BRYAN INDIANA DATES ANNOUNCED

NEBRASKIAN WILL SPEAK IN CRAWFORDSVILLE ON THE AFTERNOON OF OCTOBER 20.

TO BE IN INDIANAPOLIS, TOO

[SPECIAL TO THE HERALD] Indianapolis, Sept. 22.—Col. William Jennings Bryan will enter Indiana Oct. 15 on a five-days speaking tour under the auspices of the Democratic State Committee, making two speeches each day. His itinerary announced by Bert Hendren, chairman of the speakers' bureau, takes Col. Bryan to Burlington, Lebanon, Owensville, Evansville, Bloomfield, Washington, Edinburg, Indianapolis, Crawfordsville and Richmond.

There was a big demand for Col. Bryan's services in every part of the state and it was a strenuous task to choose the places that would suit the most people. It is possible that he will add one more day to his Indiana tour, but with the five days he has already given, it was not possible to arrange for speeches in more than ten cities.

The speeches will be made in the following order:

BROOM CORN IS GOOD CROP THERE

SOLD LAST SEASON AT $280 PER TON AND ALWAYS BRINGS A FANCY PRICE.

RAISED IN MONTGOMERY

For some reasons the farmers of Montgomery county have neglected the culture of broom corn, it being generally presumed that broom corn could be raised successfully only in a limited territory in Illinois. Boyd Clouser, residing north of the city, however, this year raised some of the finest broom corn ever seen. It is of the finest quality and stands in height about fourteen feet. He raised about a half ton on a quarter of an acre of ground. At this rate he would get almost two tons to the acre, and broom corn last year sold as high as $280 per ton. Of course, this was an abnormal price, due to the cornering of the crop. However, the average price is about $150 to $180 per ton, hence our farmers will see there is a handsome profit in the raising of broom corn. Mr. Clouser says it is easily raised here and required no more attention than ordinary corn. He says he believes the soil in Montgomery county is especially adapted to the growing of broom corn, and that it could be made a most profitable crop. For some unknown reason the raising of broom corn in this county was allowed to die out until a few years ago. It is said that fifteen cents worth of seed will seed an acre. Experiments in the raising of the crop have been made on a number of farms in this county besides that of Mr. Clouser and all have found the experiment profitable. —Crawfordsville Journal

It is probable that no event of the many unusual ones of the recent political history has afforded thinking men, regardless of party, so much satisfaction as the defeat of Towney, the stand-pat representative from the first district of Minnesota. Towney had been closely associated with Payne in the drafting of the vicious Payne-Adrich tariff bill. Situated in a western state as his constituency was, he had violated every principle of fealty and voted with the Old Guard against the interests of his own people. Later he was one of the most blatant in his denunciations of those who opposed the Payne bill, and one of the loudest in his praise of the measure. It must be remembered, also, that personally Towney was very popular in his district. He had done much, in the way of bribery, through public buildings, appointments, etc., to establish himself with the people and the politicians of his district. That the people should rise and defeat him in the face of this shows the drift of the times and the thinking the people are doing. With the failure of the "Tariff Commission" it is probable that a continuation of this same thinking will result in bringing many of these Republicans round to the Democratic belief in "tariff for revenue only."

REPORT OF THE CHARITIES AND CORRECTIONS CONFERENCE HELD IN MARION, SEPT. 1910.

An attendance upon the conference of Charities and Corrections brings to the visitor many advantages.

Not only are the sentiments of humanity mercy and justice strongly aroused, but facts and experiences are brought out, which enable one to deal more wisely with the problems by which every community is confronted and which if not met wisely and in the spirit of christianity, will cause that community to sink far down in the scale of humanity, and become an injury instead of a help to the state and nation. I confess to a feeling of humiliation in visiting these conferences, where the feeling is forced upon me that our own community is far below the best, and in fact scarcely up to the average in its point of view, its feeling of sympathy, and its wise helpfulness toward the wards of the county.

In Grant county of which Marion is the county seat, the jail, the county home, the orphan's home, leave nothing to be desired so far as fulfilling the functions for which they were created are concerned, and are ideal in point of cleanliness. I found the same conditions prevailing in St. Joseph county. It is nineteen years since the state charities were organized, and since 1895—they have been the means of saving to the state, $4,000,000 by instituting a wise management, and oversight in places of where neglect and carelessness, were the rule, and they have also raised the status and brought relief to many thousands of individuals. In 1909 notwithstanding the great increase in population, there were 31 less in the county asylums than in 1890.

Some of the evils which were brought out as still prevailing largely in the county homes, were that no medical records are kept.

There is no dietary, all are fed one thing; the sick the same as the well.

There is no one to nurse; there are no sanitary precautions.

Tuberculosis patients are not separated from others.

Flies swarm.

There is a lack of baths.

Disinfectants are applied without knowledge.

Mrs. Caroline Bartlett Crane of Kalamazoo, Michigan, of national fame in reference to cleaning up county houses and streets in cities and towns, dwelt largely upon the fact, that these forgotten specimens of humanity are left to the loneliness and dreariness of old age and helplessness with naught to interest nor cheer, nor entertain them, with nothing for their thoughts to dwell upon, but the grave which by and by awaits them.

There has been the least improvement in the jails than in anything else.

First offenders and old criminals associate together in most jails, and the youthful criminal learn to have a contempt for law, and the jail is a training school for vice.

A workhouse for several counties is advocated, and the keeping of prisoners busy while in jail.

Let them do the cleaning and paint the walls.

The Board of Children's Guardians is one of the most useful institutions in the state.

It should be its aim to gather the family together and restore the home where possible.

When a child is placed in a home, or apprenticed the Board of Guardians should follow him up and see that the home is a suitable one, and that when apprenticed he receives at the age of eighteen a sum of money with which to begin life for himself.

This much is done for the prisoners upon leaving the penitentiary.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is today the best known medicine in use for the relief of bowel complaints. It cures griping, diarrhoea, dysentery, and should be taken at the first unnatural looseness of the bowels. It is equally valuable for children and adults. It always cures. Sold by all dealers.

A Solution.

In one of Boston's primary schools the other day the head master of the district presented a problem for the scholars that would require the use of fractions. He expected the answer "I don't know." The problem: "If I had eight potatoes how could I divide them among nine boys?" One bright-looking youngster raised his hand. "Mash them," promptly replied the young mathematician.

Addie's Proposal

Of course, Addie Reynolds did not flirt. She would tell you so herself. But there were some ill-natured persons in Brookton who were so unkind as to declare that a young woman who dragged half a score of eager suitors at her chariot wheels was a confirmed flirt.

"She's the sort that dies an old maid," explained Mrs. Cady, in the awed voice of one who regards spinsterhood as a disgrace unbearable.

Phil Brewster, one of her most ardent admirers, was undoubtedly good-looking. He was full six feet tall, well built and, when he forgot to pose—which was seldom—he moved alertly and with natural grace. Tim Darnley was his exact opposite. He lacked six inches of Brewster's height and he could not coax a romantic glance into his blue eyes, try as he would. His hair was thin and inclined to a reddish tint, and there were times when he felt that his hands were as large as dinner plates.

Now as she sat there with half a dozen cavaliers in attendance, and the entire congregation of the Brick church looking on, Addie enjoyed the situation. She could imagine the gossips declaring, as they had done at every social she could remember, that the Sunday school rooms were just the same as the church itself, and that it was profanation of the house of the Lord for her to carry on so.

That was one of the reasons why Addie always flirted more desperately at the church socials than at other times. Thus it happened that the New Year festival of the ladies of the Chancel guild was enlivened by the addition to the ranks of Addie's victims of the latest arrival in town, Sam Shanley, who had come to take charge of the new bridge. The town men were inclined to resent the presence of the newcomer, and the rest of Brookton regarded with amusement their efforts to oust the latest rival.

As the evening passed Addie found the maneuvering rather tiresome, and she slipped away so quietly that none saw her go. It was supposed that she had gone home, but Tim, wandering into the empty auditorium, saw the gleam of white dress near the chancel, and in the dim light that flickered through the ground glass partition of the Sunday school room, he recognized the proud toss of the head. He would recognize Addie anywhere, and his heart leaped with joy as he realized that she had not permitted Shanley to escort her home, but had slipped away from that eager young man and was here alone. Softly he made his way toward her, but not until he spoke did she seem to realize his presence.

"I came in here to be alone," she explained, as she looked up. "I don't mean that I mind you," she added, quickly, as Tim offered to go; "but the boys have been horrid to Mr. Shanley, and I haven't been enjoying myself a bit."

"I thought you liked to see the boys fighting over you," suggested Tim. "I know that when Brewster came to town—"

Addie interrupted with an impatient gesture.

"I don't want to talk about Phil Brewster or about anyone," she said wearily. "I have been sitting here making a New Year's resolution. I am not going to let any of the boys come to see me during the new year, and if anyone dares to propose to me I shan't speak to him again. I'm tired of it all, Tim."

"It's a very good resolution," declared Tim, virtuously. "I hope that you live up to it."

"I'm going to," declared Addie, firmly. "What are you looking at your watch for?" she added, curiously, as Tim struck a match to glance at the dial.

"Ten minutes of 12," he announced as he slipped the watch back into his pocket and ground the match under his heel. "I was wondering how much more time I had."

"Are you going to make a resolution, too?" she asked.

"Not a resolution, but a last proposal," he explained. "If you are not going to listen to proposals next year, I want to make mine now, before it is too late. I have not spoken because when I see you with the other fellows I realize how little chance I stand, and yet when you tell me that I cannot speak for a whole year I feel that I must tell you that I love you and ask you if there is any hope for me. I don't suppose that there is."

He had risen to his feet again, while he spoke, and now he stood before her, his pale, eager face lighted by the dim illumination from the rooms where the festival was in progress. As he finished speaking, the bell in the tower began to toll the knell of the year and the sonorous strokes echoed oddly through the empty church.

"If you want me to say 'No,' of course I shall try and do as you ask—" began Addie. Tim grasped her hands and drew her toward him.

"Do you mean that perhaps there is a different answer?" he cried, hoarsely. "Addie, do you mean that?"

"Don't you suppose that there was some reason for my not accepting the other proposals?" suggested the girl. "Of course, I could not ask you to marry me, but now that you have—"

"You have had your last proposal," he cried. "Dear, this is going to be the happiest New Year for me!"

"And for me, too," agreed Addie.

Obituary.

Mary, daughter of Martin and Polly Frank, was born Feb. 25, 1854, and died Sept. 7, 1910, after a short illness of paralysis. She was united in marriage with John Miller, Sept. 20, 1876. To this union six children were born; four daughters and two sons. One daughter, Cunia, preceded her to the beyond. Those who survive her are, Mrs. Chas. Hart, Mrs. Edward Bettis, Goldie, William and Charles. She is also survived by two grand-children, five brothers and three sisters. Her funeral was held at the Union Chapel; burial in the Union Chapel cemetery. Rev. Miles conducted the services. She lived a Christian life, having united with the M. E. Church when a child. About five years ago her membership was transferred to the U. B. Church, of which she was a member at the time of her death. Her greatest pleasure was when she was teaching her children and friends the word of Christ.

Dear mother; bright, fairest, best, Alas, our hearts have bled for thee For 'ere thy gentle spirit passed to rest

Death held it, struggling to be free Farewell dear mother; thou art gone,

To Jesus forever to dwell; How vacant our dear home appears;

Farewell, dear mother, farewell. Day after day life ebbed away, And still thy uncomplaining soul A veteran courage did display,

That marked it for no earthly goal. And while we mourn thy blissful shore;

The angels celebrate thy worth, And death can harm thy life no more.

Then rest in peace, dear, patient heart, From earth's brief joys and lingering pain;

Thy spirit destined to depart, Dwells in paradise—free again.

Grind into a receptacle, from time to time, as they accumulate, all left-overs of cake, biscuits, doughnuts, etc., and enough stale bread to make a half-and-half proportion. When you require a plain pudding take three cups of the mixture, add one-half cup of molasses, one-half cup of milk and water, one egg, a dash of salt and a scant teaspoonful of soda. Steam in a double boiler for one and a half hours.

When a rich pudding is preferred add to the same ingredients a half-package of seeded raisins, another egg, one grated carrot, and two ounces of mixed peels, lemon and orange. Add flour enough to make it the right consistency, and steam for about two hours.

For either pudding a hard or a boiled sauce may be added. Keep the crumbs in a dry, fresh, cool place.

Confessions of Laura Jean Libbey, Famous Writer—Author of Seventy-eight Stories of the Tender Passion—Tells How She Began Her Career at the Age of Fourteen

Upon one side of President street, Brooklyn, not far from the romantic purlieu of Prospect Park Circle, there stands a pale brown house. Outwardly it appears not different from the other houses that line this thoroughfare; and yet it is different, for it contains—except from three till five-thirty daily, upon fine afternoons—Laura Jean Libbey.

"Tell me how you began to write," I asked, seating myself in a capacious chair of blue stamped leather.

"You ask me the old story," Miss Libbey began, "a story old to me, and yet, I suppose, new to others. Well, I first began to be an authoress at the age of fourteen, while I was still at school. My teacher said to me, 'Laura, I think you'd make an authoress,' and she sent one of my essays to Mr. Robert Bonner, of the New York Ledger. He wouldn't believe it came from one of her pupils."

"Now, Laura, I'm going to send him another," she said. "I'm not going to ask you to write about flowers or trees; tell him your thoughts on writing." I wrote this essay and Mr. Bonner sent for me. When I got to his office I felt like running away. But he called out to me, 'Come in, little girl, come in.' I went in and said who I was, and he said: 'Come and sit down here, child. Suppose you write a little story and bring it to me?'

I went home and wrote one of forty or fifty chapters. When I took it to him I found that he only required one of half a column. He told me to go back and write another story. I spent three months on this, and put my whole heart and soul into it, and it was so good that he agreed to publish it, and paid me $140 for it. At that time I was only fourteen years old.

"Now, understand, I'm not going to take your next story, Miss Libbey," he told me.

"Oh, why not, Mr. Bonner, if I make it good enough?" I pleaded. I was much wrought up and dreadfully cast down. The disappointment was terrible.

"Because it will do you good to go round among the publishers a bit," he answered.

"Don't you ever take a second book from any author?" I asked.

"Very seldom," he answered.

"That's how I began to write. My first great success came with the publication of Miss Middleton's Lover, and since then I have been writing constantly."

Looking at her, it seemed difficult to believe that this delightfully youthful lady in the capacious chair of blue stamped leather was the author of "Don't Tell Mama"; "Zeta, the Oil King's Sweetheart"; and about eight and seventy other productions.—Victor Rousseau, in Harper's Weekly.

Economical Puddings.

Grind into a receptacle, from time to time, as they accumulate, all left-overs of cake, biscuits, doughnuts, etc., and enough stale bread to make a half-and-half proportion. When you require a plain pudding take three cups of the mixture, add one-half cup of molasses, one-half cup of milk and water, one egg, a dash of salt and a scant teaspoonful of soda. Steam in a double boiler for one and a half hours.

When a rich pudding is preferred add to the same ingredients a half-package of seeded raisins, another egg, one grated carrot, and two ounces of mixed peels, lemon and orange. Add flour enough to make it the right consistency, and steam for about two hours.

For either pudding a hard or a boiled sauce may be added. Keep the crumbs in a dry, fresh, cool place.
